"I'm not who you think I am", sings Cheryl B. Engelhardt, supported by crunchy guitar and her own driving arpeggios on piano. "I'm going to break your heart and this is your warning". Consider this YOUR warning of big things to come from this pop pianist, singer, composer, and songwriter. With a knack for catchy piano licks and a voice honed by collegiate a capella, Cheryl has the tools and talent to bring her songs - thoughtful and touching as they are - to innocent and energetic life. Cheryl's skill isn't limited to pop, though. Be sure to check out the high-level arranging and counterpoint chops she uses on "We", an excellent, thickly harmonized track available only on her webpage.
